A Robert Walters Group Company

Client case study:

Leading Sport Association

Walters
— People

Background & Approach

Walters People was approached by a leading sports association to recruit a credit controller within a week to cover an urgent sick leave on a 3-month initial contract.

Walters People moved quickly to utilise our existing Temp candidate network, then went out to LinkedIn and other job boards, generating an initial shortlist of candidates.

Solution

Two candidates were selected for interviews. One particularly outstanding candidate from a leisure background was offered the position within 4 days of receiving the job specification.

Upon accepting the offer at a slightly hourly rate than initially discussed the candidate was able to start within a further 2 days.

Results

Following the successful completion of the contract, Walters People received additional work from the client, indicating their satisfaction with our services. We were also able to assist the candidate in securing her next role. Achieving a one-week turnaround from briefing to start date, along with two contract extensions, demonstrates our ability to fulfill the key expectations that every business desires from a recruiter: efficiency and speed.

Client

"Walters People was able to provide good quality CVs efficiently once onboarded - we were delighted to extend her contract through to a total of 7 months. Walters People were in regular communication with us and the candidate to make sure both parties were aware of the ongoing situation we were very pleased with the service."

- Client, Transactional Finance Manager

Candidate

"I really enjoyed my time contracting through Walters People. The role was challenging and enjoyable and I was happy to stay on for as long as was needed. In fact, Walters People were also able to help me secure my next contract which I am currently still enjoying with a similar business."

- Candidate, Anita Gorsia
